Discoverunlimited, multimedia content loading... March 18, 2015 By Kerry Buckley & filed under Paper Crafts Blog, Scrapbooking. Are you thinking of trying out scrapbooking, but not sure where to begin? The amount of options and possibilities for scrapbooking that are available right now are downright overwhelming. But fear not! These scrapbooking ideas for beginners are all you need to get started today! 1. Choose your topic Scrapbooking is all about telling a story. Think about the events and moments in your life you'd like to document. Once you have a story or theme, selecting everything else becomes much easier. Below are a few tips for deciding your topic. Go small, going too big can be intimidating. It's best to start with a very specific story or event so that you don't get overwhelmed. For example, instead of documenting your entire "girls' weekend" getaway – focus on the most hilarious or funny moments from that trip. Story vs. theme If you find starting with a story to be difficult, choose a specific theme for your layout instead. Examples of this would be a graduation, birthday or sporting event. 2. Choose your album size Common sizes The two most popular formats for scrapbooking are 12"x12" and 8.5"x11". There are many papers and albums designed to accommodate these sizes, so choose whichever you think will work best for you. Keep in mind that 12"x12" will allow room for more photos and embellishments, but they do take up more physical space. 8.5"x11" pages are a good choice if you're nervous about filling up space on a 12"x12" layout. Photo via Kerry's Paper Crafts Mini albums No one says you have to stick to either of the "standard" sizes. Mini albums are extremely popular and come in all shapes and sizes! There are many "standard" mini-album sizes available: 8"x8", 6"x9" and even 4"x4" to name a few. You can also make your own mini-album in any size (or shape) you like. Mini albums can be a great way to start your scrapbooking journey, as you can often find kits that include everything you need. 3. Choose your photos When it comes to pictures, less is more. Don't feel like you need to include ALL the photos that relate to your subject, just a few favorites. Here are just a few tips for choosing photos to scrap. Choose the photos with the best lighting and focus. Try not to go with dark or blurry images. Choose photos that depict more than just smiling faces. For example, if you're scrapping about your baby, include detail shots like baby hands or feet. Perhaps include a photo of their first set of books, toys, etc. If possible, have your photos processed with a matte finish instead of glossy. Matte photos are less prone to fingerprint smudges when you handle them. 4. Choose your layout Choosing the layout can be the most overwhelming part of scrapbooking. Where do you even begin? Here are some tips on deciding which layout is best for you: Choose the focal point of your layout. What do you want readers' eyes to be drawn to? If it's one particular photo, try and arrange your layout so that the photo stands out among the rest of the items on the page. If you have a lot of photos: trim them down! Don't be afraid of using non-traditional sized photos. Photo via Page Maps If you are totally stumped on how to lay out your page, challenge yourself with design sketches from sites like Page Maps. This site contains wonderful pre-made scrapbook sketches that do all of the design work for you. Simply follow the design and customize to your own photos and style. 5. Gather some basic supplies Finding the perfect paper crafts supplies and kits is all part of the fun! Be careful not to get overwhelmed by all the supplies on the market. Here are some basic supplies you'll need to get started: Patterned paper and/or card stock Acid-Free adhesive (tape runner and/or liquid) Minimal embellishments and/or stickers Paper trimmer and/or sharp scissors Photos Page protectors/album Tags: beginner, paper crafts, scrapbooks Scrapbooking is sweeping the nation! Scrapbooking is super fun and rewarding, but there's a lot to take in > It isn't just about sticking things down on paper. In this guide I'll break things down for you, so you can get started. Firstly when it comes to your scrapbook project, don't get overwhelmed. Stick to the basics (which we'll cover in this guide :)>Soon enough, you'll be able to easily and instantly enhance the look of your homemade scrapbook page. At the end of the day making scrapbooks is about preserving your beautiful memories (pictures). So as you begin your journey, try and keep it fun and remember, scrapbook making for a beginner is as much about experimentation as it is creativity! Here are a few basics to start creating beautiful scrapbooks. Before the scrapbook ideas flow, in fact before you even stick anything down to paper, your scrapbook supplies and space need to be organized! Resist the crafter's urge to rush out and buy albums or patterned papers until you have the space ready. Getting your physical space right will really help your mental and creative space and can be a fun project to focus on. I've been making personalized scrapbooks in so many random places over the years but I honestly feel like I produce my best work (and love scrapping even more) when I have a tidy and organized designated space. Find an area in your house that can be dedicated to creating scrapbooks. This is where you'll be able to keep all your scrapbook supplies (such as your albums, scrapbook paper, pictures, etc)! Is there a small closet that isn't being used that could have the door taken off and used as a work area? What about the landing at the top of your stairs? Or how about the odd little nook off the kitchen? If it's only used as a temporary storage area, start to claim it as your scrapbook sanctuary! Make a scrapbook page in record time by organizing your craft space! Any place that has nearby storage for your scrapbook supplies is also great and would be your first choice. You'd be surprised how quickly your paper stash and collection of albums can get! >> Click here to see some good storage solutions. Also, a quiet space can be beneficial. I find my best scrapbook ideas for beginners come when it's lovely and quiet. Ideally, you need a scrapbook space big enough to house a small desk or make a work table by placing a countertop over two 2-drawer file cabinets. But remember, the smaller the space you're using, the more organized you'll need to be, otherwise, things get messy! I know this first hand. My current space is an internal room and I have serious scrapbook paper storage issues. I have at least two piles of paper under my desk, and then even more paper stored on my shelf. I'm still working on a solution! A big tip is to surround your scrapbook crafting space with beautiful things that you love. Perhaps some photos of your family, maybe your favorite album on display or even some flowers. You could even showcase previous pages you're most proud of in frames on the wall. When you feel happy your creativity will blossom and the inspiration will come which will make it easier for you to create eye-catching scrapbook layouts! Having good natural light is one thing I definitely recommend. But if you can't then there are some real desk lights on the market that can help you see that all-important detail. I use LED lights as my scrap room is an internal room and they are really good. Focus on creating a positive space and great idea will flow! Wait!
